

Belinda Epstein

Belinda was called to the Bar in mid-2017. Prior to coming to the bar, Belinda practiced as in-house counsel at a NSW State-owned corporation, worked as a solicitor in both large national and smaller practices and lectured and tutored at the University of Newcastle in civil procedure and alternative dispute resolution.

Belinda has significant experience in health law, medical negligence, institutional abuse and other personal injury claims, acting for both plaintiffs and defendants in New South Wales and interstate. She regularly appears in coronial inquests and appears in commissions of inquiry, disciplinary, guardianship and mental health matters.

Belinda is also available as a mediator for personal injury/civil claims.
